7. TEACHING METHODS AND LEARNING ASSESSMENT

7.1. Teaching Methods

TT	Teaching Strategies	Teaching Methods
1	Direct Teaching: Direct teaching is the process in which instructors directly deliver fundamental information and knowledge to learners. In this approach, the instructor plays an active role in controlling, guiding, and implementing teaching activities. Through presentation, explanation, and detailed guidance, instructors help learners access, acquire, and clearly understand lesson content. This teaching strategy is effective in providing systematic knowledge and introducing new skills, thereby establishing a solid foundation for learners to apply such knowledge in professional practice and develop practical skills.	- Lecturing / Presentation / Oral exposition - Explanation and illustration - Dialogue (Question and Answer) - Problem posing - Simulation method
2	Indirect Teaching: Indirect teaching is a teaching strategy in which learners are provided with learning opportunities without direct intervention from instructors through explicit teaching activities. This is a learner-centered approach in which instructors do not directly deliver lesson content but instead encourage learners to actively participate in the learning process and use critical thinking skills to solve problems. Through this strategy, learners not only develop self-learning and independent research abilities but also enhance their awareness and personal responsibility for their own learning.	- Case-based learning - Problem-based learning - Guiding questions - Online learning - Assignments - Discussion
3	Experiential Learning: Experiential learning consists of four stages: Concrete experience , in which learners participate in practical activities such as group discussions, laboratory practice, or field trips;	- Experiential learning - Internship / Fieldwork - Simulation - Practice - Discussion

	Reflective observation , when learners reflect on and analyze results, behaviors, and feelings from their experiences; Conceptualization , when learners derive lessons and theoretical understanding from reflection; and Active experimentation , when learners apply knowledge to new situations for testing and adjustment. This method not only develops knowledge and skills but also enhances learners' attitudes toward learning.
4	Interactive Teaching: Interactive teaching is a strategy in which learners not only receive knowledge from instructors but also interact with peers, instructors, and learning content. Instructors organize and facilitate the learning process, while students actively participate in discussions, dialogues, and collaboration to construct knowledge. This is a two-way interactive process involving continuous feedback and adaptation, helping to develop communication skills, collaboration, critical thinking, problem-solving abilities, and learners' confidence and proactiveness.	- Interactive lectures - Group assignments - Discussion - Practice - Internship / Fieldwork
5	Self-directed Learning: Self-directed learning is a strategy in which learners guide and control their own learning process with little or no direct instruction from instructors. Learners actively seek knowledge, plan their learning activities, and complete learning tasks through assignments, projects, or problems suggested by instructors. This strategy helps develop learners' self-learning ability, independent research skills, autonomy, and responsibility.	- Online learning - Homework assignments - Self-directed learning - Practice - Internship / Fieldwork

7.2. Learning Assessment

The assessment of learning outcomes complies with the current Undergraduate Training Regulations and the Regulations on the Assessment of Program Learning Outcomes issued by Quy Nhon University.

Grading Scale

Grading Scale	Description
10-point scale	The 10-point scale includes scores from 0 to 10 (with one decimal place) and is used to evaluate and record continuous assessment scores, final examination scores, and course grades .
Letter grade scale	The letter grade scale is used to classify course results , corresponding to the course grades on the 10-point scale .
4-point scale	The 4-point scale is used to calculate the semester GPA and cumulative GPA , evaluate students' academic performance after each semester or academic stage, and determine graduation classification .

/Format, evaluation criteria, and scoring system.*

- Theoretical courses

No.	Format	Evaluation criteria	Weight
1	Continuous Assessment	- Activeness and level of participation in preparing lessons and engaging in classroom activities; - Attendance in compulsory class sessions; depending on the number of absences, the lecturer determines the score proportionally; - Homework assignments: correct and complete work; - In-class assignments: correct answers and demonstration of personal viewpoints; - Presentations: level of preparation, knowledge content, and presentation skills; - Written quizzes/tests: correct answers evaluated according to the answer key; - Discussions and group activities: level of preparation, knowledge content, communication skills, activeness, and expression of personal viewpoints.	30% or 40% or 50% of the course grade
2	Final Assessment	- Written examination: correct answers evaluated according to the answer key; - Presentation: level of preparation, content of information, and communication skills; - Oral examination: correct responses demonstrating knowledge, communication skills, and personal viewpoints.	70% or 60% or 50% of the course grade

Internship Course:

+ Continuous assessment: 40%

+ Internship report evaluation: 60%

- Graduation Course (Thesis): Implemented in accordance with the current Undergraduate Training Regulations of Quy Nhon University. Specific criteria are presented in detail in the course syllabus.

- Assessment Methods: The relationship between Program Learning Outcomes (PLOs) and assessment methods is presented in detail in the Program Specification.

10. GUIDELINES FOR TRAINING PROGRAM IMPLEMENTATION

This training program shall be applied from the 2025–2026 academic year to students majoring in Oriental Studies (Japanese Studies, Chinese Studies, and Korean Studies specializations).

The training process is based on the designed curriculum, training objectives, target learners, human resource requirements, and specific requirements for training. For elective courses, depending on practical conditions, development trends, and social demands, the department responsible for the program and the faculty managing the courses will advise students in selecting appropriate courses.

The Dean responsible for the program is responsible for organizing and guiding the principles for curriculum development and detailed course syllabi in order to ensure that the objectives, contents, and requirements of the program are met, while also satisfying the needs of learners and society.

The training program shall be periodically reviewed, evaluated, and updated in accordance with current regulations of the Ministry of Education and Training of Vietnam and Quy Nhon University, in order to meet the development of Oriental Studies at the undergraduate level and to align with socio-economic development needs.
